Districts

Name: Lost Venice Canals Historic District

Description:
The Lost Venice Canals Historic District is a residential neighborhood located in the northwestern portion of Venice. The district contains 449 properties, with boundaries coinciding with those of Venice’s original canal district. The district is bounded by Innes Place to the west, Westminster Avenue and Alhambra Court to the north, and Venice Boulevard to the southeast. On the south, the district extends to the rear lot lines of those parcels along the southerly side of Grand Avenue from Venice Boulevard west to Main Street.

The district occupies flat terrain just blocks from the Pacific Ocean. Streets throughout the district exhibit an irregular pattern which reflects the area’s original network of canals. Development in the district is primarily residential, with some commercial properties located in the western portion of the district. Residential lots in the district are extremely modest in size, with most parcels smaller than 0.10 acres. Original single and multi-family residences were constructed primarily from the 1910s through the early 1920s and are one or two stories in height. Many homes were designed in the Craftsman style, although the district also includes examples of a wide variety of Period Revival styles. Today, these early homes share the block with more recent construction. Other features of the district include the unique configuration of the streets, which create irregularly-shaped blocks originally bounded by canals; the traffic circle which occupies what had been a lagoon at the intersection of Main, Grand and Windward; and mature palm trees which date to the area’s original development.

Of the 449 properties, 178 are contributors to the district (approximately 40 percent); 256 are non-contributors due to extensive alterations or construction outside the period of significance. Fifteen properties are not visible from the public right-of-way.

Significance:
The Lost Venice Canals Historic District is significant as a unique example of early-20th century residential development oriented around the original Venice canals developed by Venice of America founder Abbot Kinney. The district’s period of significance is 1904 to 1929, encompassing the period during which the canals were extant.

In 1891, tobacco magnate and real estate developer Abbot Kinney and his business partner, Francis G. Ryan, purchased a 1.5 mile-long strip of beachfront land located to the south of Santa Monica. The 275-acre parcel, which extended from Strand Street south to Mildred Avenue, had originally comprised a portion of the Rancho La Ballona and was initially settled by the Machado and Talamantes families in the early 1800s. Kinney and Ryan turned their attention to the northern portion of the tract, where they developed the resort community of Ocean Park. Following Francis Ryan’s death in 1898, Kinney attempted to carry on with new business partners, but the men found themselves at odds with each other and the business was dissolved in 1904. Kinney won the undeveloped southern portion of the tract in a coin toss employed to divide up the company’s assets. He immediately commenced with improvements designed to transform the saltwater marshland into a seaside resort modeled after the Italian city of Venice.

In 1905, a subdivision map was recorded for the Venice of America tract, which reflected Abbot Kinney’s initial plans for his new development. Kinney was a proponent of the “City Beautiful” movement, which advocated planned communities with generous public spaces and dedicated areas for commercial, recreational, and residential properties. The land comprising the district represents the area set aside by Kinney for residential development in Venice. The area was uniquely situated, as it was ringed by the Venice Short Line, the Pacific Electric red cars which ran along Venice Boulevard, Pacific Avenue, and Electric Avenue. In keeping with Kinney’s vision for a town which resembled the Italian original, the residential area of Venice – known as the “canal district” – was distinguished by a network of man-made salt water canals. The lateral canals in the residential area led to the Grand Canal, which emptied directly into the sea. As much of the land on which Venice was constructed was situated below sea level, the canal waters were controlled by the rising and falling of ocean tides, which flushed the waterways. Distinctive arched footbridges spanned the canals and connected the four islands of residential lots. Adding to the unique feel of the area, palm trees were planted along canals and roadways.

The first sale of residential lots occurred in 1904 in advance of the official opening of Venice the following year. Of the 504 lots available, 289 lots fronted the canals. Depending upon location, prices for the lots ranged from $600 to $1200. To prevent speculation, Kinney limited sales to two lots per person. Homeowners were afforded access to their lots in a variety of unusual ways: by private rowboat or canoe, or via gondolas which served as public water taxis (as well as rear access via alleyways). A 2.5-mile miniature railroad line was also constructed, which ran along the banks of the canals.

The first homes in the district were completed in 1904. Early residences were relatively modest; many homes were designed in the Craftsman style, the prevailing style of the period. Later residences exhibited a wider variety of architectural styles, and included examples of popular Period Revival styles such as American Colonial Revival and Spanish Colonial Revival, as well as more eclectic examples of the Byzantine, Italianate, and Prairie styles.

Overall, however, construction of new housing in the residential canal area was “spotty at best.” It was a disappointment to Kinney, who had sold the lots to buyers with the understanding that they would build homes in a similar “Venetian architectural style” shortly after opening day. To his dismay, many buyers had broken contracts and sold to speculators. Additionally, the San Francisco earthquake, which took place in April 1906, just ten months after Venice officially opened, caused the California financial market to collapse. As a result, many wealthier lot owners postponed construction of a second home, and building activity in the district did not gain momentum until the 1910s.

By the mid-1920s, the infrastructure of the canals was deteriorating and the canals themselves were seen as obstacles to progress. The growing popularity of the automobile motivated public demand for additional parking and improved traffic circulation in Venice. After a years-long legal battle between residents and city officials, in 1929 the Venice of America canals were filled in and paved over. The former bathing lagoon to the west of the development became a traffic circle, and the lateral canals were given new street names – Lion Canal became Windward Avenue; Cabrillo Canal became Cabrillo Avenue; Venus Canal became San Juan Avenue; Aldebaran Canal became Market Street; Coral Canal became Main Street; Altair Canal became Altair Place; and Grand Canal became Grand Avenue.

Today, the Lost Venice Canals Historic District stands out from surrounding development due to its unique planning and development around Venice’s original system of canals. Despite a relatively low percentage of contributing properties, the neighborhood retains a distinctive feel that conveys a strong sense of time and place.

Name: Milwood Venice Walk Streets Historic District

Description:
The Milwood Venice Walk Streets Historic District is a residential district located in the northern portion of Venice. The district contains 471 properties. It is bounded by Lincoln Boulevard to the northeast, Amoroso Court to the southeast, Venice Boulevard and Electric Avenue to the southwest and west, and Palms Boulevard to the northwest. The district occupies flat terrain less than a mile from the Pacific Ocean. Walk and drive streets throughout the district are generally arranged in a grid pattern with a diagonal orientation. Walk streets include Nowita Place, Marco Place, Amoroso Place, and Crescent Place, which have vehicular access from rear alleys or “courts.” Drive streets within the district include Palms Boulevard, Superba Avenue, Linden Avenue, Oakwood Avenue, and Shell Avenue. Lots in the district are exceptionally modest, with most parcels less than one-tenth of an acre in size. Development in the district is primarily residential, containing mostly one- and two-story single-family residences with little or no side or rear setbacks. Original residences were constructed primarily from the 1910s through the mid-1920s and were largely designed in the Craftsman style, although the district also exhibits examples of other Period Revival and modest vernacular styles. Today, these early residences share the block with more recent construction. On the walk streets, residences are oriented onto narrow concrete walkways punctuated by distinctive circular planting beds. The walk streets are largely characterized by front yard walls and fences and mature vegetation. The drive streets feature concrete curbs and sidewalks with landscaped parkways. A landscaped traffic circle occupies the intersection of Crescent Place, Shell Avenue, and Superba Avenue. Of the 471 properties, 169 are contributors to the district and 281 are non-contributors due to extensive alterations or construction outside the period of significance. Twenty-one properties are not visible from the public right-of-way and could not be evaluated. Other contributing features include the walk streets and associated circular planting beds. Overall, the architectural character, layout, scale, setbacks, and circulation patterns are unique in Los Angeles. The district conveys a strong sense of time and place as an early Venice beach community.

Significance:
The Milwood Venice Walk Streets Historic District is significant as a unique example of early-20th century residential development oriented on walk streets in the Venice community. The district’s period of significance is 1904 to 1939. This range represents the primary period of development during which the land was subdivided and original residences were constructed. In 1891, tobacco magnate and real estate developer Abbot Kinney and his business partner, Francis G. Ryan, purchased a 1.5 mile-long strip of beachfront land located to the south of Santa Monica. The 275-acre parcel, which extended from Strand Street south to Mildred Avenue, had originally comprised a portion of the Rancho La Ballona and was initially settled by the Machado and Talamantes families in the early 1800s. Kinney and Ryan turned their attention to the northern portion of the tract, where they developed the resort community of Ocean Park. Following Francis Ryan’s death in 1898, Kinney attempted to carry on with new business partners, but the men found themselves at odds with each other and the business was dissolved in 1904. Kinney won the undeveloped southern portion of the tract in a coin toss employed to divide up the company’s assets and subdivided the land into the “Venice of America” tract, which extended east from the beachfront to present-day Abbot Kinney Boulevard. He immediately commenced with improvements designed to transform the saltwater marshland into a seaside resort modeled after the Italian city of Venice. The announcement of Kinney’s plans spurred further development of the surrounding area by other real estate investors. The land comprising the Milwood Venice Walk Streets Historic District represents the efforts of several investors to capitalize on the area’s proximity to the “Venice of America” development. The district is comprised of three tracts. The majority of the land in the district was subdivided as part of the Venice Annex tract, which was recorded in 1905. The northernmost portion of the district, extending from Rialto Court north to Palms Boulevard, was subdivided in two separate tracts. The Venice Park Tract, recorded in 1904, subdivided the land from present-day Electric Avenue to Oakwood Avenue and the Venice Vista tract, recorded in 1905, subdivided the land from Oakwood Avenue to Lincoln Boulevard. The Venice Annex tract, the largest of the three tracts in the district, was distinguished from other subdivisions in Venice by its unique layout of walk streets, drive streets, and alleys. The tract was designed to provide separate thoroughfares for automobile and pedestrian access, with “drive streets” paralleling “walk streets,” and walks streets accessed via rear alleys or “courts.” This layout is also present in an earlier subdivision to the north, the Golden Bay tract, which was developed by Abbot Kinney. There, the plan has been attributed to cost-cutting measures; the developers were able to reduce costs by substituting sidewalks for streets, which achieved a courtyard effect for the small lots while providing safety for children. A short time later, the Venice Annex tract was designed to achieve the same effect. Development activity in the Venice Annex tract exemplified the demand for residential real estate in Venice at the time. It was reported that when the tract opened to the public in 1905, it took only two days for every lot to be sold; total lot sales for the weekend topped $300,000. Construction activity commenced shortly thereafter, and continued throughout the 1910s and early 1920s. Most of the residences constructed in the district reflected the simplistic aesthetic of the beach community and Craftsman, vernacular, and similar cottage styles prevailed. By the 1920s, new residences constructed in the district reflected the growing popularity of Period Revival styles, though most examples remained modest in scale and decoration. Today, the Milwood Venice Walk Streets Historic District stands out from surrounding development due to its unique planning and development around a system of walk streets. The architectural character, layout, scale, circulations patterns, and pedestrian orientation of the neighborhood retains a distinctive feel that conveys a strong sense of time and place.
